Wheat prices hit new highs this week with the front-month Sep futures hitting $7.41. Tightening global supplies and strong export sales kept traders in a bullish mood. Statistics Canada released their estimate of the Canadian wheat 2007/2008 crop at 20.322 million tonnes. This is almost 20 percent below last year's harvest and down from the USDA August estimate of 21.5 million tonnes. Analysts were expecting a production estimate between 20.8 and 22.7 million tonnes. U.S. wheat exports were also bullish, as USDA reported sales of just over 1 million tones fell right in the middle of the 700,000 to 1.3 million ton expected range. In the corn market, weekly export sales were a combined 1,108,800t which was considered supportive as it was on the high end of trade expectations. Year-to-date sales are currently 2.210 billion or 110 million above the USDA projection and shipments need to average approximately 37 million bushels per week over the next couple of weeks that would appear to be no problem obtaining. Soybean sales were about double what the high end of trade estimates were expecting with combined sales totaling 957,800 MT compared to estimates ranging from 250,000 to 500,000 MT. With the beans up 30-cents for the week, there could some profit ahead of the weekend as traders await ProFarmer's yield and production estimates from their crop tour.
